The Roman aqueduct now called the Pont du Gard was built across the Gard River in Southern France in 19 BC.
It supplies Nemausus (Nimes) with water. The tower of its 3 tiers now serves as a road bridge

After entreaties by the people Augustus agreed to accept consular power. His authority thus became equal to that of the Consuls in Rome and Italy, and much greater than theirs in the provinces. In addition, he controlled the army.

There was very one serious complaints against him. He had no place, without a meal for the purpose. The poor and ignorant have no place.

VIRGIL'S AENEID

Based on the Greek model of Homer, Virgil's monumental epic, the Aeneid attributed the origin of the Roman people to AENEAS, a hero of the Trojan War. The 1st century A.D.

produced a flourishing of letters, with such writers as PETRONIUS and SENeca drawing on the legacy of the late republican writers VIRGIL, catellus and cito.

In this decade Augustus' stepsons Tiberius and Drusus subjugated Illyria Pannonia and Raetia.

Drusus fought his way to the Elbe, but suffered intestinal injuries from a fall, lingered in pain for 30 days, and died. Tiberius rode 400 miles in horseback from Gaul into Germany to
